ZEPHYR INTRODUCES SLEEK, POWERFUL ROMA ISLAND RANGE HOOD FOR FREE-STANDING COOKTOP VENTILATION

Popular Wall-Mounted Roma Hood Adapted for Island Kitchen Configurations Offers Elegant Styling, Affordability and Fast Installation

SAN FRANCISCO — Nov. 6, 2007 — Zephyr, a leading designer and manufacturer of design-centric, high-end kitchen ventilation hoods, today introduced Roma Island, a new, free-standing version of its sleek, contemporary Roma wall-mounted range hood. Designed for use over cooktops on kitchen islands or peninsulas, Roma Island combines power, convenience, ease of installation and affordability -- major advantages for urban residential developers, professional builders and cost-conscious renovators.

Part of Zephyr's Europa Collection, Roma Island features the same bold styling and stainless steel construction of the wall-mounted Roma, with:

- 36" and 42" widths
- Powerful, 600-cfm internal blower with 6" round duct
- Angled halogen lighting that provides better cooktop illumination
- Easy, push-button controls for three-speed blower and halogen lights

For the kitchen contractor or builder, Roma Island offers unique ease-of-installation features:

- A quick-locking hanging mechanism that makes it one of the easiest island hoods on the market to install
- Duct cover extension up to 12 feet to accommodate non-standard installation needs
- Optional recirculating kit for ductless venting

"With Roma Island, we have adapted one of our most popular wall-mounted hoods to a wider range of kitchen configurations," said Arcadio Lainez, director of marketing for Zephyr. "As part of our Essentials product line, Roma Island provides a sophisticated kitchen design element that is both practical and versatile, perfectly suited to an urban loft or a modern suburban home."

The new Roma Island range hood became available through Zephyr distributors in October 2007. For more information, kitchen professionals and homeowners should contact their local Zephyr dealer or distributor.
